

WALL ST. BOMB THROWER TRACED TO PHILADELPHIA

Said to Be Widely Known
Anarchist With a Prison Record.

CHIEF FLYNN ON HUNT

Man Reported to Have Been Hiding in Home in Quaker City.

N. Y. CITY POLICE IGNORED

Federal Bureau Plays Lone
Hand in Search for Author of Crime.

The man alleged to have been responsible for the Wall street bomb explosion has been traced to Philadelphia. It was learned yesterday, and is being sought there by a squad of picked detectives. Moreover, it has been learned on good authority that for several days after the disaster the man was in hiding in his home in Philadelphia.

William J. Flynn, chief of the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice, went to Philadelphia yesterday and held a long conference with Director of Public Safety Cortelyou and Superintendent of Police Mills. Chief Flynn refused to discuss the conference. While none of the officials would affirm or deny the report, it is said that the man is a widely known anarchist with a prison record. Chief Flynn is said to have asked Director Cortelyou for a dozen of his best men to assist in the Philadelphia end of the hunt.

It developed yesterday that in seeking to arrest the driver of the wagon which caused the explosion Chief Flynn has chosen a lone hand in so far as concerns the city police force here.

THE NEW YORK HERALD's circumstantial story, published exclusively yesterday, concerning the circular issued and signed by Chief Flynn, giving a description of the suspect, caused astonishment among the ranking officials in Police Headquarters, at Centre and Grand streets. Inspector Coughlin, commanding the Detective Bureau, read it and immediately sent for various bureau chiefs, including the most active men of the so-called "bomb squad."

Then the telephone wires began to hum between Police Headquarters and the office of the Department of Justice on the fourteenth floor of the Park Row Building. It did not take Inspector Coughlin long to learn that such a circular as the one described and bearing the name of William J. Flynn actually was in existence and that it had been given at least a limited if not a general circulation in certain police and post office circles. He was so informed by Department of Justice officers in the Park Row Building.

THE NEW YORK HERALD has first hand knowledge—not merely hearsay information—concerning the document. It knows that in certain towns and cities not more than 100 miles from New York the description of the ostensibly fugitive driver of the bomb wagon was read in the hearing of large numbers of Government officials, including letter carriers, whose duties are of a character that brings them into personal contact with men and women of every social status, the purpose presumably being to enlist the services of such persons in the effort to smoke out the suspect from his hiding place.

Trevor Arnett Reports to Rockefeller Education Board on College Teachers' Pay and Says Higher Institutions Are Menaced Through Lack of Funds.

The General Education Board, which was founded by John D. Rockefeller, made public yesterday a summary of a study of "Teachers' Salaries in Certain Endowed Colleges and Universities of the United States" which was made by Trevor Arnett, formerly auditor of the University of Chicago, for the purpose of providing a basis for the distribution of a $5,000,000 gift made by Mr. Rockefeller in December, 1919. With this gift Mr. Rockefeller made the suggestion that it be used to stimulate and assist colleges and universities in raising additional endowment for the increase of teachers' salaries.

Mr. Arnett's study contains information concerning colleges of arts, science and literature, arranged under three groups—men's and coeducational institutions, women's colleges and colleges for negroes. State universities and one or two large endowed institutions are not included.

Salaries paid in 1914-15 to $4,000 teachers, ranging from instructors to full professors, in 25 institutions in all parts of the country, are compared with salaries paid in 1919-20. Of this number, 120, or 54 per cent, were paid in 1919-20 from $500 to $2,100 per year; 2,235 received salaries above $2,100, but of these only 346 received more than $4,000 a year. Only ninety-two received more than $6,000.

These salaries include an increase of about 25 per cent between 1914 and 1919. Meanwhile, according to the United States Commissioner of Labor, the cost of living had increased not less than 80 to 90 per cent. Sixty-one per cent of the teachers reporting were married. Mr. Arnett concludes: "The data show clearly that our higher institutions of learning which are supported by endowment are seriously menaced through lack of funds to pay adequate salaries to teachers. Business economies may be effected by the introduction of more efficient methods of conducting strictly business operations, yet there is grave danger that large numbers of able men may be driven from academic life and that young men and women of ability may be deterred from entering academic careers. It is incumbent upon those who believe in the importance of endowed colleges and universities as factors in our educational development to cooperate promptly and generously in assuring their future."

NEGRO ROBS WOMAN AT BRADLEY BEACH

Knocks Down Mrs. James J.
McNamee and Fills Her Mouth With Sand.

Special Dispatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD, BRADLEY BEACH, N. J., March 31.—The police of all nearby towns are hunting for a negro who assaulted Mrs. James J. McNamee of Plainfield today while she was walking along a lonely part of the beach front here. Mrs. McNamee's husband is director of publicity for the National City Company of New York. Mrs. McNamee was walking when Mrs. Etta Glennon of East Orange when the negro appeared. Before she could escape the negro had filled her mouth with sand. Mrs. McNamee's eyes and mouth with sand while Mrs. Glennon ran screaming up the boardwalk. "Becoming curious at Mrs. McNamee's struggles, the negro picked her up and threw her heavily to the ground, within a few inches of a steel girder. He then robbed her of a bag containing $10 and a number of blank checks signed by her husband. He disappeared over a bridge into Ocean Grove.

It was some time before Mrs. Glennon's cries attracted the attention of some men who were working on the beach front. Mrs. McNamee was carried to a drug store and restoratives were applied. She was removed to her home, 299 McCabe avenue, summer, which had just been opened before the Easter holidays. Physicians attending her said to-night that she was suffering from bruises and might be in a serious condition due to the shock.

Mr. McNamee learned of the assault while he was in his office in New York and came here immediately. He is helping the police in their search for the negro. Purses are forming and all bridges and highways are being guarded, though the police are handicapped because the women were unable to give them an adequate description.

WOMAN AT THE WHEEL

Another Brooklyn Boy Crushed to Death After Jumping Off Wagon.

Florence Karp, 8 years old, of 43 Manhattan avenue, Brooklyn, was killed last night by an automobile in front of her home after she had thrown her sister, Sarah, 4 years old, out of the path of the machine. The two children had stepped off the curb to cross the street when an automobile, driven, according to the police, by Mrs. Ann Weinstein of 32 McKibben street, with her brother, Irving Schwartzman, the owner, beside her, bore down upon them. Florence saw the danger and screamed. Then, seeing that it was too late for the car to turn out, she seized her sister about the waist and threw her with all her strength toward the curb. The child landed safely. Florence by the effort lost her balance and could not dodge out of the way. She fell in front of the machine and was killed.

Patrolman John Jacquillard of the 52nd street station broke through the crowd and picked up the girl's body put it on the back seat. Then he ordered the car driven to St. Catherine's Hospital. The child was pronounced dead there, and the officers returned with Schwartzman and Mrs. Weinstein to the 52nd street station. A charge of homicide will be made against both defendants in Bridge Plaza Court today, according to Assistant District Attorney Wilson. It was said at the station that each of the defendants said the other was driving at the time of the accident. Mr. Wilson was told by witnesses that the woman was driving, and seemed to lose control as the machine approached the children.

David Nadel, 6 years old, was killed a block from his home at 135 Belmont avenue, Brooklyn, when he jumped off a 19 S. C. wagon and walked into the path of an automobile. The driver, Pacific Rehill of 17 Ivy street, Elmhurst, L. I., was not arrested.

GERMAN BRINGS DYE SECRETS TO DU PONT'S

Belongs to Firm Accused of Trade Betrayals.

Herr Gustave Macdonald, an engineer of the Bayer dye works at Leverkusen, Germany, who gets his surname from a Scotch grandfather, arrived yesterday by the Royal Italian Mail liner Duca d'Aosta to go to the American dye manufactory controlled by the Du Pont company of Wilmington, Del. He said he had secret formulas with him.

In the latter part of February a cable to THE NEW YORK HERALD from Cologne said warants had been issued for four leading dye experts of Bayer & Co., charging them with "breach of contract and betrayal of commercial secrets."

Two of these experts, Dr. Otto Runge and Dr. Joseph Plachander had already arrived here. They declared they had in no way broken faith with their former employers. The other two experts, Dr. Heinrich Jordan and Dr. Max Engelmann, have not been heard from.

Other passengers by the Duca d'Aosta were Mrs. Mabel Smith, honorary president of the New York Federation of Women's Clubs, who has been visiting her daughters in Italy, and Mrs. Ethel Kelting, wife of the actor Cyril
